There has been more pain and sorrow for members of the fire fighting Community and those who protect our lives, as more of “their own” experienced tragedy. Past Fire Chief Association President, and past LVD Fire Chief, Jesse Cox, watched as his fellow fire fighters tried in vain to save his burning home, and to witness a Lewiston VFD fireman, Walter Sykes, become stricken with a fatal heart attack while fighting the blaze.

The President of the Trinity County Fire Chiefs Association and TCVFD Assist. Chief Roger Chatterton sent an E-mail to the members of the Trinity County Fire Chief Association and others that stated: “As some of you aware, Chief/President Jesse Cox' home burned down Wednesday. To compound the tragedy, one of the Lewiston VFD firefighters, Walter Sykes, suffered an apparent heart attack while fighting the fire and was transported to Mountain Community Medical Services in Weaverville where he died... Thus, one of our own has lost his home; another has lost his life.”

Chatterton's email continues, “Yesterday our association gave a check to Jesse to start to at least cover some initial expenses. We will pass the boot during our meeting on 7 November. I am putting out this E-mail as early as possible to allow all of us to do fund-raising within our departments, auxiliaries and communities, and bring in those checks to fill the boot. And fill it we must. The last line on the inscription on the plaque we awarded to Jesse Cox said "Lest we forget". Now it is for us to show indeed, we shall not forget. Something those of us in emergency services know all too well is that fate is the hunter, and it is always hunting.....”

It is tragedies like these that remind us how important our fire fighters are to us, and how they risk their lives to keep us safe. Now we have the opportunity to give something back to one of them by honoring the fund raisers, or depositing money into the bank account being set up at the North Valley Bank to help Chief Jesse Cox and his family. Let's help them “fill the boot.”

The identity of the mystery man from Covington Mill that brought in a box of coins to the Coffee Creek School for the victims of Katrina has been “outed”. He is Alton Turner, and the box was not a “little” box. It contained 34 pounds of coins. We challenge anyone to beat Patricia and Alton Turner's donation of 34 pounds of coins.

On October 26, District Supervisor, Bill Chambers, Director of Building and Development Services, Wyatt Paxton, and Airports Manager, Steve Roberts met with 21 local residents (mostly pilots) to discuss past, present and future plans for the Trinity Center Airport. It was learned that the Forest Service is now under a new management, which is very amenable to resolving the past problems that hampered the building of 6 new hangars, improvements to the airport runway, and to complete a land transfer that would remove the Forest Service involvement in the airport. Don Mullins, a Trinity Center pilot and active member of a group of pilots that has been working diligently towards this positive end, writes the Forest Service is "willing to work with the County in any way possible to make the land transfer go through as quickly as possible, even suggesting ways to speed it up. They want to clear the path for us to build 6 hangars next year – that would be before the land transfer is completed. They have been talking to the county about removing/fixing the objectionable language they had previously forced into our hangar lease agreement with the County. They are funding the environmental study needed to transfer the land, including the runway extension and several small "island" pieces of land adjacent to the airport. They are in the process of working out an agreement with the County that will expedite future tree cutting when they grow into our air space. The County wants to have a scooping meeting with Trinity Center to do more in-depth planning for the "Airport Layout Plan." That is expected to be in early December or early 2006
